What's New?

■ Taxes! Owning and operating two small businesses (including this one) and neglecting formal accounting all year means that's what I'm stuck doing at the moment. The fact that taxes are due right near the end of the busiest time of the year never helps.

■ Commissioned works. I've got a lot of them to do including a huge dining set for a big charity event, owl mugs, and a butterfly vase. Of course, there's also all the ideas floating around in my head waiting to come out too! That should keep me busy for a while.

■ Kristi Pimentel Seashell Designs is now open in Cottage One! I hope you'll welcome her there and see all the talent and dedication she brings to our little community. She has been open pretty much every day since she got her key from the city.

■ A group of photographers came by the cottages recently and took some great action shots including the 3 in the above collage by Flum Focus Photography. The pineapple on the right is a project being worked on by one of my students.

■ There are some events coming up in the park and at the cottages. Check the bar on the left of this newsletter.

■ Many new pieces are still available. Aside from some necklaces, what hasn't sold is all up on Etsy.
